Little Theater Sign Shadowbox $300 and Bronze Plaque $400

In the new Theater, we plan to honor a sign that watched thousands of Foothillers enter their drama classes, perhaps as far back as 1937 when the name “Little Theater” was first used to describe the drama classes held upstairs in the north wing once it became the Old Main.

In the 1940’s, the “Little Theater” moved to the 1941 Music Building. When this sign first appeared above the doorway is unknown, but the legacy of excellence through decades of Foothiller productions is without dispute.

Bronze Plaque for the 1988 ART Sign: $400

The sign was moved from the front of the 1948 Art Building to its current location beside the 2016 two story ART building; to its left is the 1935-1936 WPA tennis bench in its original location.
